

NATIONAL LEAGUE CONTENDERS PLAY HERE THIS WEEK

Cincy Reds Here Wednesday; Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday

Moran's Veterans Formidable If Holdouts Come Into the Fold

PIRATES DARK HORSE

Addition of Maranville Has Made Bucros Powerful—Attack Doubtful

By LARRY DAILY
Tulsa baseball fans this week will have the opportunity of seeing two of the leading contenders for the National League pennant, the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates. The Reds are here Wednesday and the Pirates Thursday.

These two teams, with New York and Brooklyn are considered to have the strongest array of talent and both are picked to be in the championship hunt from the start.

Patrick Moran's veterans are expected to come back and make an especially strong bid for championship honors. This despite the presence of a few holdouts on the roster, chief of whom are Heide Groh and Eddie Routh, two of the greatest stars in the game. These two men may be signed by the time this week is in print, however, and it is a practical certainty that they will be in the lineup soon, at least in the opening game April 12.

George Gibson's Pirates are figured as the dark horse of the National League. The addition of Nantz Maranville, than whom there is no better shortstop in the game, has made the Buccaneers especially powerful club, both in the defense and offense. The Smoky city club needs a more powerful attack than was theirs last year. Their ability as run getters will determine to a great extent their position in the race.

RED SACKER THOMPSON HAS A CHARLEY HORSE.
Manager Burke of the Oiler last night said that a workout will be taken today if weather conditions permit. Should the infield be too wet for practice the day's session will consist of batting practice and warming up.

The squad is in exceptionally good condition, Frank Thompson being the only ailing athlete. Thompson is troubled with a Charley horse which has slowed him up, and which necessitated his removal from the Kansas City game Friday.

TWO NEW SITE OFFERS
Nevada Silver Mining Camp and London Interests Want Stage Heavyweight Battle.

NEW YORK, March 28.—Two new offers of sites for the proposed heavyweights championship were made to promoter Tex Rickard today. One came from a Nevada silver mining camp, and guaranteed the pugilist impresario the sum of $500,000 if he would stage the contest there July 4. The other was presented by representatives of a London syndicate and included a half-million dollar offer for the bout if it could be held in the Olympia during derby week.

Rickard took the offers under consideration and said that a final decision might be expected this week unless untoward circumstances arose to delay decision.

It was learned, however, that Rickard had no intention of holding the match in any isolated section of the country if a site close to the metropolis is available. The expense attendant upon a boxing bout of this caliber is so great that only a large center of population to draw from would warrant the expense of an arena capable of seating the number of spectators necessary to pay for the purse involved.

Reports were current today that the contest would be held in New Jersey and both Newark and Jersey city were named as probable sites for the arena. Rickard refused to say, or confirm the rumors, and stated positively that he would not announce the place of combat until he was absolutely assured that the bout could go through with the enterprise before he had started building a structure.

Joe Lynch Shakes Pinchot. PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 28.—Joe Lynch, bantamweight champion boxer of the world, won by a shade from Young Pinchot of Charleston, Pa., in 10 rounds here tonight, according to a majority of the sport writers. The only knockdown came in the seventh when the champion sent Pinchot to the canvas for a count of nine. The bout was also in the early rounds. Pinchot was the aggressor, landing often with his left. Lynch took six rounds, Pinchot three and one was even.

RAY IS MAKING GOOD WITH A'S

Former Oklahoma Aggie Pitcher Shows Well in South

Special to The World.
WILLOWATER, Okla., March 28.—Wilbur Ray, owner of nine "09s" and acclaimed the most versatile athlete who ever wore an Oklahoma A. M. college uniform, has a mighty good chance of becoming a regular during his first season with the Philadelphia American league team—something that happened to very few youngsters who enter professional ball, no matter how promising they are.

There's no doubt about Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Athletics, being pleased with Ray's work since he reported at the spring training camp at Lake Charles, La., late in February. Sport page clippings, letters and other sorts of information drifting into Stillwater, to "Wib's" parents and friends, have surprised his most ardent followers. He is unassuming, in fact, ultra-modest, and these reports are not results of his own statements.

Wilbur Is Hitting 'Em.
Mack is undecided about one thing, though. He doesn't know whether to use Ray as a pitcher, as he signed him, or as a third baseman, Ray's hitting, according to Mack, is too good for a pitcher. In the past two weeks, Ray has alternated on the mound and at the hot corner, and his hitting has been remarkable.

In one game Wilbur slammed the ball outside the park for a pair of home runs. In another he got two three-baggers. In another he pitched two clean hits and drew two bases. This hitting resulted in his third base assignment, but last Monday he pitched five innings against the regular lineup and allowed but three hits.

The Philadelphia Record says: "Mack is pleased with the delivery of Wilbur Ray, the new pitcher from Oklahoma. He says Ray has a baffling delivery, peculiar and very fast, and says he has seen pitchers with Ray's delivery that have made good from the jump. In the practice game this afternoon Ray and Myatt astonished the fans with home runs over the fence."

"Versatile as Fred Stone."
Another Philadelphia paper says: "Wilbur Ray is as versatile as Fred Stone. In baseball, football, basketball and track he has won a flock of segments of the old alphabet. In baseball, Ray is a right-hander, and a pitcher who can hit. He was born in Grenola, Kan., 23 years ago, and is now a resident of Stillwater, Okla., where he has attended the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college. Ray's Christian name is Wilbur, and his middle name is Ray. He is a college player last year his batting average was .300."

Another clipping from an early practice game says: "Mack had his first glance at Ray today and he has made a good start. Mack is pleased with the manner in which Ray handles himself at bat. He is a strapping youngster and is probably a find."

The Athletics break camp in Louisiana this week; according to a letter from Ray, received Thursday by his father, and sent northward, Wilbur hopes to travel with the first string.

Andy Chaney to Box Johnny Kilbane for the Featherweight Title
NEW YORK, March 28.—Andy Chaney of Baltimore will meet Johnny Kilbane for the featherweight title in Cleveland during the coming summer, it was announced here today by Eddie Meade, Chaney's manager.

Chaney closed with Tommy McInty of Cleveland, who came here to sign the Baltimore boxer. The bout will be over the 15-round route to a decision, such contests having been recently legalized in Ohio. The date will be named later.

California rowing authorities, where the intercollegiate rowing championship has always been decided by a triangular race between California, Stanford and Washington, indicates that California and Washington will fight it out, as Stanford will be unable to compete because of a lack of funds. However, Stanford alumni expect to raise funds to send a crew to the Poughkeepsie regatta, and there it will be a chance that a Stanford crew will dispute the right of California and Washington to the 1921 Pacific coast rowing title.

Youngster Sewell Who Filled Gap In Indian's Infield Ready For Play

Manager Speaker of Indians talking to Joe Sewell at Dallas training camp

Joe Sewell, the stocky little collegian who, playing his first time in the major league company, proved the sensation of the 1920 campaign, is in trim for his first full season. When Ray Chapman, super-shortstop of the Indians, was killed by a pitched ball as the team plunked toward the pennant, the gap left was a big one to fill. Sewell, a University of Alabama grad, was summoned and sent right into the game, regularly. His hitting and fielding were sensational.

College Oarsmen Preparing For Greatest Rowing Year
NEW YORK, March 28.—April will see the birth of what should prove the greatest season of college rowing this country has ever witnessed.

Negotiations started by colleges fostering rowing during the winter months indicated some time ago that 1921 was to be a banner year for the great water sport, but latest developments indicate that it is to be more brilliant than the most optimistic rowing devotees had hoped.

The schedule of rowing events for the season is perhaps the most impressive thing from the standpoint of the public, but it is timely to record here that rowing coaches throughout the country report that they are for the most part at a loss to handle the ever-increasing number of candidates who turn out for the variety, junior varsity and freshmen crews.

Princeton, rich in rowing history, is to have a new boat house on Carnegie Lake, and Penn is to have a $40,000 boat house on the Schuylkill. Columbia's crews, which have to depend on the hospitality of the Union Boat Club, on the Harlem, are to have more room. Edwin Gould, who once ruled a Columbia oar, is to move from his boat house on the Hudson river and has presented it to his Alma Mater.

Activity in West.
News from the Pacific coast, where the intercollegiate rowing championship has always been decided by a triangular race between California, Stanford and Washington, indicates that California and Washington will fight it out, as Stanford will be unable to compete because of a lack of funds. However, Stanford alumni expect to raise funds to send a crew to the Poughkeepsie regatta, and there it will be a chance that a Stanford crew will dispute the right of California and Washington to the 1921 Pacific coast rowing title.

BASEBALL COACH AID TO MANAGER

Dozen Big League Leaders Have Veteran Assistants

By International News Service.
NEW YORK, March 28.—The baseball coach has come into his own.

Though recognized as an asset to major league clubs for years, his position today is the most prominent he has ever known, and the coming pennant races will find him playing an important role in both big leagues.

No less than a dozen clubs will have the services of thoroughly experienced coaches in the next campaign. Five teams boast two coaches, who were noted players in their day, in addition to their managers.

McGraw's Able Lieutenants.
The New York Giants have a staff of tacticians that resembles the general staff of the army. Manager McGraw, who will be the guiding spirit of his team on the field, will be assisted this year by Hughie Jennings, Jesse Burkett and Casey Stengel. These men were great players in bygone days and it goes without saying that the Giants will lack nothing in baseball gray matter on the bench and the coaching lines.

The Yankees likewise will be directed by a competent staff headed by Manager Huggins. Charlie O'Leary, old time Detroit shortstop, and Frank Roth, one time White Sox catcher, will assist the midget manager.

The Washington Senators, now managed by George McPherson, still have the veteran Nick Altrock, who is being retained for his coaching ability as much as his antics on the baselines. And Clark Griffith will lend his managerial knowledge to the running of the team.

Veterans Assist Mack.
Connie Mack, with the veterans Harry Davis and Danny Murphy, hopes to lift the Athletics out of the rut and at this writing appears to have better than an even chance of doing so.

Johnny Evers, who at the outset planned to run his team alone, will be assisted by Jack Altrock, and George Gibson has Chick Frazier to help him handle the destinies of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"Noodles" Hahn, who was a great southpaw in his day as a member of the Cincinnati Reds, will be Pat Moran's right hand bower. Fred Mitchell will be assisted in directing the Braves by Oscar Dugue, one of the craftiest interpreters of signals in either major league.

Burke Aids Hugh Duffy.
Hugh Duffy, now manager of the Red Sox, will have none other than Jimmy Burke, last year manager of the Browns, to help him map out the campaign of the erstwhile world's champions for a comeback, and Dan Howey will act as Ty Cobb's first lieutenant at Detroit.

Branch Rickey has the veteran scout and catcher Joe Sugden his staff and the Folsom-based manager in the handling of the Browns by Jimmy Austin and Lefty Leifield.

The veteran pitchers of the White Sox and Cleveland Indians will lend assistance to Managers Gleason and Speaker in handling the youngsters.

FOUR GAMES FOR METS
Muskegon Southwestern League Tossers Play Major and Minor Leagues at Home.

Special to The World.
MUSKEGON, Okla., March 28.—After holding the New York Giant second round to a 5-0 score after only two days outdoor practice, the Muskegon Mets Tuesday will open practice for a series of four exhibition games starting April 2. The Columbus American association team will be here Saturday and Sunday; the Omaha Western leaguers Monday and the Chicago White Sox on Tuesday. Other games are to be arranged.

Fans here were very much pleased with the showing of the Mets against the big league squad. The locals had been outside only two days and had had no diamond practice, only moderate ball tossing.
